1. INTRODUCTION

The City's "Active Design Guidelines: In Support of Daily Physical Activity and Social Interaction in Buildings" is a guidebook and assessment tool to encourage building designs that make daily physical activity and social interaction among neighbours more inviting. The Guidelines would be used in the review of larger commercial and mixed use rezoning applications and include guidance to building designers to:

- Encourage the everyday use of stairs;
- Encourage the design of spaces for neighbours to meet naturally;
- Provide indoor amenity areas;
- Include outdoor recreation areas for all ages and abilities;
- Provide outdoor garden areas.
